

AJL Presentation @ The Autry National Center

Lantern slide of advertisement for Newmark's grocery store, 19th century. Glass, paper. Donated by Mr. Thomas Blackburn. Museum of the American West, Autry National Center; 2001.73.21.3

The Stuff of Memories

June 17, 2007 • 11 am–5 pm

Autry National Center • Griffith Park

Help us learn more about the history of Jewish Los Angeles! The Autry National Center has begun work on an exhibition about the Jews of Los Angeles, but we need your help.

We want to see your artifacts! Do you have any materials from local Jewish institutions and synagogues? What about family heirlooms that better tell the story of Jewish L.A.? You don't even have to be Jewish to participate. Jews have, over the years, been part of political and social movements that have changed the city of Los Angeles. Do you have any artifacts that demonstrate this? We will have independent experts on hand to assess the value of your objects.

The day includes educational programs, music, and craft activities. So bring your family and your family's artifacts to this event.

Admission to the event is free. Does not include museum admission.
For more information, please e-mail egreenberg@autrynationalcenter.org.

Autry National Center

AJL Vice President and Founder, Rabbi Yaakov Horowitz will be giving a presentation and participating in panel discussions at the Autry National Center in Los Angeles on June 17, 2007. The event, “The Stuff of Memories”, is one in a series which will culminate in an important exhibition by the Autry Museum focusing on the history of the Jews of Los Angeles.

The AJL is grateful in its role assisting the Autry focus on the important role of Los Angeles' traditional Jewish community.